

Handsewing 101

Created by Z Kemp

@seven.hobbies

Threading a Needle

Cut a piece of thread about one arm's length. Take one end of the thread and feed it through the eye of the needle. A diagonally cut thread helps with this process.

Take both ends of thread and match them up. Knot the thread towards the end of the two strands.

Beginning and Ending

To begin, insert the needle through all fabric layers and bring it back up to the initial side, picking up a couple threads of fabric in the process. Slowly pull the thread through the fabric, leaving a loop. Guide the needle through the loop and pull the thread snugly.

The process for knotting the end of a seam, either when you have finished a seam or have run out of thread, is the same as beginning.